BAR GROUP TO DISCUSS
APPOINTMENT OF JUDGES

2,000 Attorneys Expected To Attend Conclave Scheduled for July 9-11 at Columbus.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., June 26 — A proposal for appointing judges to the Ohio supreme court and appellate courts instead of electing them by ballot is one of the important issues to come before the Ohio State Bar association convention, July 9-11.

John L. W. History, association secretary, predicted that more than 2,000 attorneys would put away their shingles for three days of business and entertainment sessions.

The committee on judicial administration and legal reform is ready to submit a report urging a constitutional amendment whereby judges of the supreme court and of the courts of appeal would be appointed by the governor upon the recommendation of the state judicial council.

Such an amendment would carry a provision for recall by a majority vote at any general election after the appointee had served six years.

Another important subject concerning an alleged insurance accident claim racket, which is being investigated by the state insurance department, also will come before the delegates.

Irene H. W. Arant of Ohio State university will report on the work of the committee on legal ethics and professional conduct and this will be followed by a general discussion of a proposed integration and federation of the state bar.

Election of officers will be held on the closing day.

Charles W. Racine of Toledo, president of the association, will preside at the convention sessions. Leading candidates to succeed him are George R. Murray of Dayton, Griffin J. Friedrich of Cincinnati, and William M. Weidner of Mansfield.

Stanley Reed, solicitor general of the United States, is scheduled for the convention's principal address. He represented the national administration in several new deal policy battles before the U. S. supreme court and will speak on "The Constitution, a Vital Institution."

TYPICAL BOY SCOUT CAMPING SCENE

Pictured above is a typical scene of scoutcraft activity similar to the program which Marion city and county scouts are following in their two-day camp, being held at a camp site on Vernon Heights boulevard. Activities, which began yesterday afternoon and will continue until tomorrow morning include exhibitions of scoutcraft, games, campcraft, campfire programs and a campfire court of honor.

Marion County of Century Ago
Was Noted for Popular Taverns

Marion county was a hospitable place to travel in years ago, a county of many inns and taverns and of homes that were always open to the weary traveler.

One-fourth of Marion's population of 110 years ago were tavern keepers, writers for the American Guide, the Federal Writers' Project handbook, have discovered. Not only that, but everyone "look in" travelers.

Marion was on a busy route, the main road from Columbus to Upper Sandusky, and the stagecoaches stopped regularly twice a week.

History records that the earliest inn in the county was built in 1811 by Nathaniel Wyatt, whose descendants still live in Marion and vicinity. It was a log house enclosed by a picket fence within the enclosure of old Port Morrow, one mile south of Waldo on what is now route 23. Ten years later Mr. Wyatt built a brick tavern which was used until 1840.

Popular Spot.
Built on the old Military road, Wyatt's tavern was undoubtedly a place of considerable importance, a place where travelers stopped and talked with the genial landlord of the great opportunities awaiting in the new country.

FVP writers found that Ebenezer Roschberry, who came from New Orleans in 1812, was probably the first settler in Marion county north of the present site of Waldo and that he was an innkeeper. He was an eccentric individual, history reveals.

The Blueball, named for a blue ball hanging above the front door, was a well-known tavern on the Military road, located two miles south of the present city of Marion, and operated by John Barks until 1831.

First Marion Tavern.
Marion city's first hotelery was built in 1822 by Eber Baker, founder of the city. In front of a log cabin owned by a man named Chandler he erected a one and one-half story log house 20 feet square, to serve as a tavern. In 1833 he added another cabin of the same dimensions. This tavern was an "aristocratic" public-house, where the judges of the day, Ebenezer Lane and David Higgins of Norwalk, Frederick Crimke of Chillicothe and J. A. McDowell of Franklinton, now Columbus, played overnight.

Seven years later, in 1830, Baker erected the most famous of Marion's early hostels, the Mansion House, a two-story structure of stone quarried in the county and covered with plaster. The Mansion House was on the spot where the Hotel Marion now stands, and for 20 years it was regarded as the finest stopping place between Columbus and Sandusky.

GRANGE WILL GIVE PROGRAM THURSDAY

The program hour last night was devoted to practice of the program to be given at the Progressive grange meeting. It also was announced that Pomona grange will meet July 11 at the Montgomery grange hall at DeChiff. The next meeting of United grange will be July 8.

For cultivating the ground along park sidewalks a gasoline tractor has been developed that is narrow enough to be driven on the walks.

AT CAMPORAL

Public Invited To Attend Special Court of Honor at 8 O'Clock Tonight.

One hundred Marion Boy Scouts and leaders pitched their tents and are camping at a site just south of Vernon Heights boulevard for a two-day camporal which opened yesterday afternoon. The patrols are competing in campcraft, cookcraft and scoutcraft events, with each group preparing its own meals and being graded on balanced menus, food preparation, cooking, serving, disposal of garbage, food storage and cleanliness. Under campcraft the patrols receive points for tent pitching, proper ditching of tents, making comfortable beds and proper layout of patrol camp sites. During this morning and afternoon scoutcraft events in log chopping, fire lighting, first aid bandaging, knot tying and judging distance, were conducted under the supervision of Fred Allen, camp chief, and Chet Evans, program director.

Preceding the evening inspection last night, conducted by Alfred H. Exton, Sr., district commissioner, a formal retreat of the flag was held with Troop 2 in charge of the ceremony. The evening campfire was lighted by Harold Fralick of

Bucyrus Fire Chief Soon To Round Out Forty-Eighth Year As Head of Force

F. Mader Has Held Job Paying $68 a Month Since 1888.

Special to The Star
MARION, O., June 10.—William F. Mader, 71, next Wednesday will round out his forty-eighth year as fire chief, a term of service that is believed to be unequalled in any city in Ohio. There are Ohio fire chiefs who have served more years than Chief Mader, but there are firemen who have served their departments for longer periods than he, but according to the officials of the Ohio Fire Association he has served as chief longer than any department head in the state.

WILLIAM F. MADER

There are many unusual things about Chief Mader's regime as head of the Bucyrus department. In the long term of service, in the place, the job is a hobby with him rather than a vocation. Although the position has paid him a salary, it now amounts to $68 a month—Chief Mader has turned to business interests for his means of livelihood.

This independence so far as the chief is concerned has given him the department unusual freedom from outside political influence. In fact, Chief Mader didn't accept the position until 1888, until the council met to demand for a bill of rights that gave him a free hand in the department. Prior to that time, he said, councilmen had been inclined to be "bossy," oftentimes neglecting the department financially and on some occasions attempting to dictate how it should be operated.

Never Asked Raise

Another unusual circumstance in connection with his 48-year record is the fact he never asked for an increase of salary. Considering the fact that he paid for the first 10 years only $100 a year, friends of Chief Mader point to his indifference to salary as evidence of genuine interest in his position.

Only one Ohioan—Chief Joseph Hay, 71, of East Palestine—has been a fire department chief more years than Chief Mader. Chief Hay has served 50 continuous years, but his service has been entirely with a volunteer department instead of one employing full-time men.

Both Chief Hay and Chief Mader are outdone in the number of years spent in fire departments by Chief Robert Mesner of Canton, who has served his department 66 years. However, Chief Mesner has been chief of the Canton department only 36 years.

Chief Mader started his career as a fire fighter fully five years before he became chief. In those five years fire fighting was purely a civic service—in Bucyrus a fireman's job then cost the holder rather than paid him. Chief Mader recalls that the old volunteer companies held meetings once a month and assessed members 25 cents a meeting for absence.

"If you missed the first roll call when the meeting opened, you had to pay a fine," he said. "If you missed the last roll call at the close of the meeting, it cost 15 cents more." It wasn't all lost, however, because the "fines" furnished the company with funds for an occasional "feed."

Rivalry Intense

Those were the days of intense rivalry between fire companies. Competition between companies to see which would get to the fire first occasionally became so serious that the company in the lead would drop off one or two of its members to block the path of the company that was trailing it.

Also, there was intense rivalry between hoodlums and fire companies of different cities. Chief Mader recalled the company he joined in 1883 was made up largely of young men who were fast runners and "handy" with fire equipment. It won many prizes in inter-city competition but had one serious rival—a Tiffin company.

Chief Mader smiled as he recalled how the Bucyrus and Tiffin companies finally started "teaming," using the best men from the two cities to make up a crack company which subsequently took all inter-city prizes in north central Ohio.

The awards were a small part of the winnings in these competitions—private bets placed by the company members and their backers were at stake.

Uncle Was Chief

Chief Mader started his career as a fireman while his uncle, Philip Schaeffer, was chief. Schaeffer was succeeded by Charles Muntz, who in turn was replaced by Chris Scheib, and then Schaeffer became chief again. Then the advent of the Bucyrus waterworks changed fire fighting methods.

When Mr. Mader became chief on July 1, 1888, he was provided with a department consisting of two horses, 14 call men and a hand-drawn hook and ladder outfit.

Chief Longer Than Any Other Ohioan; Anniversary Wednesday.

fit. Two years later, another team was purchased for the hook and ladder company and still later a steam pump was bought to boost the water pressure, which then was too low for some fire fighting purposes.

The first motorized equipment came into the department in 1911, a combination hose, chemical and ladder truck. Horses were kept for other equipment. In 1918 a motorized pump was put into service, eliminating the hose truck team. The old steam pump, also obsolete at that time, nevertheless has been kept and still stands in one corner of the fire department building.

The last team of horses was eliminated in 1923 when a ladder truck was bought.

Still Some Call Men

When Chief Mader took office as head of the department, he had two full-time men. In 1892 the third man was put on and later additions increased the force to six. The department still has 14 call men.

Pay for firemen was introduced when Mader became chief. The pay was 50 cents an hour. At present, the call men get $150 for the first hour's work and 75 cents an hour for additional time spent at fires.

Chief Mader's business interests now include directorship and vice presidency of the Bucyrus City bank and directorship in the Peoples' Building & Loan association.

Before years of prohibition, he was a wholesale liquor dealer.

He lives in Bucyrus with his only daughter, Mrs. Vern Heckenbauer.

Chief Mader today reviewed changes that have been made in fire fighting methods.

"In the early days, we thought only of getting water on the fire whereas we now take pains to see that we don't cause needless damage with water."

"Many of fire calls used to be barn fires. Nearly everyone used to have a barn and many persons in the community had a cow and some chickens. We had to wade in mud lots of times to answer calls—once in awhile our overalls would stick in the mud and you'd have to keep on going without them. In the real early days, we had to draw the equipment by hand, dragging it sometimes three-quarters of a mile to answer a fire call. Travel was slow and fires would get a much better start than they do now with fast, modern equipment."

City's Worst Fire

Probably the most destructive fire in the history of Bucyrus, Chief Mader said, was the Carroll Foundry, which burst into flames presumably from spontaneous combustion. Loss was estimated at $78,000. That fire was in 1916.

Despite heavy losses in occasional fires, including one that wrecked the Bucyrus opera house Jan. 21 of this year, Chief Mader's record in keeping fire losses at a minimum is regarded as outstanding. The loss has averaged $138 per capita yearly since 1900 and in some years dropped far below that. In 1932 it was 12 cents per capita for the year, in 1933 it was only four cents per capita.

Recent destruction of a residence was the first time a house had "burned down" or "burned up," whichever you prefer to call it, since April 1, 1899, when a house was destroyed because fire equipment got stuck in the mud and remained there until three teams were hitched together to remove it. The largest residence fire loss since the house burned in 1899 was $1,875 damage caused in a residence fire Feb. 26 of this year. In the intervening years, residence fire damage never exceeded $1,000 for a single fire.

Twenty-eight horses were burned in a fire that destroyed a livery barn on what is now the southwest corner of the square. The fire occurred on March 24, 1896, caused $14,000 loss and was seen by hundreds of persons.

Chief Mader aspires he would like to round out half a century as fire chief before he begins to think about retiring. He said he has taken very few vacations, but has enjoyed his work so much that he isn't "worried" about getting one. He explained he is not a "full-time" chief, although he spends many hours regularly at the department.

The Stars Say--

For Saturday, June 11

A VERY lively day with many openings for advancement and prosperity is read from the lunar transits. Business and various occupations having to do with writings, publishing and promotion are under excellent promise, with financial prospects almost certain. The same configuration presages strong friendships among superiors and those in a position to assist with meritorious propositions or plans. Personal popularity and tact will count with corporations, companies and secret organizations. Those whose birthday it is may look for a very satisfactory and prosperous year, with much live-liness and the friendly support of powerful personages in combined, trusts or secret societies. This personal popularity will prove an asset, but use it with tact and discretion.

A child born on this day may be very clever and versatile, with much intellectual ability, which may be devoted to writing, publishing, promotion or business. He should have much personal popularity and appeal with the public.

Notable nativity: Charles Parnell, Irish patriot.

Well known citizen is loud in praise of the great herbal remedy VENDOR. Tells how it relieved indigestion, ended constipation, built up his system.

The whole world helps make Vendor, the remarkable remedy which is doing talked about so much in this town, from far off Japan and nearby Mexico, from sunny Spain and the snow covered Alps from the rocky slopes of northern Chile and the sunlit plains of South Carolina—come the 12 natural roots, herbs, leaves and herbs which bring health and happiness to thousands. Vendor is nature's own remedy—and is being publicly praised by thousands, many right here in this city.

MR. W. B. COLE
Mr. W. B. Cole of 912 West Grand St., Columbus, Ohio, says, "When a man can be so quickly helped by a remedy like Vendor you may be sure that it is different from the thousand and one other medicines on the market. Before I began the Vendor treatment I was in a constant state of constipation. My bowels were clogged all the time and after every meal I would almost double up with the pain caused by indigestion. I'd fill up with gas and felt like there was a lump in my throat. I lost all desire for food and my nerves kept me awake by the hour every night."

"I often felt so dizzy I would have to hold to something to keep from falling. I always felt tired and listless and had no energy to do a thing."

"After taking three bottles of Vendor I feel like a different man and as well as when I was years younger. Constipation gone, stomach easy, no more gas, cramps or bloating. I'm glad to recommend such a fine medicine."

All druggists sell Vendor and it is especially recommended in this city by Ramsey & Company.

CLEANUP WEEK OPENS JUNE 28

City Health Commissioner
Urges Cooperation of All Residents.

Marion residents were urged to clean-up their premises in a request "order" issued today by Dr. John L. Crichton, city health commissioner. The week of June 28 has been set as cleanup week and residents are asked to cooperate in the drive to make Marion cleaner and more healthful.

"Recent numerous complaints received by the health department regarding the unsightly and unsanitary conditions of many properties makes it necessary to urge the clean-up," Dr. Crichton said. "It might be well to point out that present city ordinances prohibit the existence of such nuisances and continued failure to eliminate unsightly conditions may make it necessary to turn repeated complaints over to the police department," the commissioner added.

Weeds on vacant properties should be cut, ashes, trash and the unsanitary conditions of toilets must be remedied, the commissioner said in outlining a campaign for the week. Where water and sewage systems are available, ordinances prohibit outside toilets.

and in localities where those facilities are not available the standard closets are recommended, he said.

"Existing conditions are actually a menace to the community," the commissioner pointed out in stressing the fact that during the summer special precaution should be taken against contamination of food, milk and water. Children's summer complaint, typhoid fever and dysentery are only a few of the more common diseases spread by the unsanitary conditions, he said.

It is planned to follow cleanup week with thorough investigation of the conditions and of all subsequent complaints by officials of the health department.

SIDEWALK PROJECT NOW AT STANDSTILL

Success Hinges on City's Ability to Raise Funds.

The WPA's updown sidewalk project today apparently hinges on the possibility the city might raise sufficient funds to pay the sponsor's share of the cost after Chamber of Commerce officials announced their checkup among business men indicated merchants apparently are unwilling to underwrite the program.

W. D. Brown, chamber secretary, and Earl T. Smart, chairman of the retail division of the chamber, said merchants have indicated to them they are not interested in contributing 10 cents a square foot to pay for materials needed in the project. The WPA would furnish the labor.

Several merchants, they said, have pointed out that the city owns the sidewalks and that funds for improving them logically should come from the city treasury.

In Ohio History

From the J. H. Gairdner collection of Ohio histories, written for The Associated Press. COL. AUGUSTUS COLEMAN. Few graduates of the U. S. Military academy who were retired and living in Ohio at the opening of the Civil war enlisted as private soldiers for that service. But Ohio had one who did. He was Col. Augustus H. Coleman of Troy. He never attained a rank higher than colonel, but that was probably due to his early death at the front.

When the first call came for volunteers, he enlisted at once as a private soldier and obtained an assignment to recruit a company. He had no trouble in organizing a company of more than 100 men in 48 hours. Then Coleman became the commander of a regiment and he moved toward the top in about nine months. He was killed in the battle of South Mountain.

C. OF C. TAKING WPA LEVY POLL

Seek To Determine Sentiment of Members Regarding Proposed Tax Vote

TO CHECK RESULT MONDAY

Take Action After Failing To Find Other Sources of City Revenue

The Marion chapter of the Commercial Club is taking a poll to determine the sentiment of its members on a proposed special city tax levy to raise funds for WPA work. The poll will be taken on Monday, June 27, and the results will be reported to the club on Tuesday, June 28.

The poll is being taken in view of the fact that the club has been unable to find other sources of city revenue for the purpose of financing WPA work.

In a letter sent to chamber members explaining the purpose of the poll, the president of the club, James A. Farley, said: "The club has been unable to find other sources of city revenue for the purpose of financing WPA work. We are therefore taking a poll to determine the sentiment of our members on a proposed special city tax levy to raise funds for WPA work."

At a special committee meeting held with the mayor and chairman of the finance committee of the city council, the club has been unable to find other sources of city revenue for the purpose of financing WPA work. The club is therefore taking a poll to determine the sentiment of its members on a proposed special city tax levy to raise funds for WPA work.

The chamber board of directors will meet Monday noon at hotel Harding to determine the results of the poll and decide what further steps to take.

WEST SELECTED TO SECOND ROOSEVELT

Insisted Sawyer selection would not result in unifying the two organizations. Sawyer had been an outgrowth of the governor and last spring was a candidate against him for the gubernatorial nomination.

Gov. Davey however denied he had been interested in the selection of a national committee and indicated that he would not have dictated the selection had he wanted to. He said more than a majority of the delegates personally had asked him to specify whom he favored.

William J. Leonard of Cincinnati, Hamilton county leader and chief lieutenant of Sawyer in the national committee fight immediately disputed the governor's claim.

The most votes that the state organization could muster in the half of a candidate against Sawyer was 20, Leonard said.

Three men often in the headlines were in the news again when photographers caught them in action at the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia. In the top picture James Roosevelt, eldest son of President Roosevelt, holds aloft the flag of the Democratic party.

TWO PARTY PLATFORMS CLASH IN SOME PLACES

Conflict Most Evident in Stand Taken To Meet Nation's Problems of Welfare

By The Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, June 26—The party platforms meet head on in the broadest sense in their definition of their purposes of welfare. The Republicans from the individual standpoint the Democrats from the viewpoint of the masses of humanity.

The platforms are not drawn in parallel columns. They do conflict in definition of purpose in a half dozen instances.

The Democrats last night said they held this truth to be self-evident that the test of a representative government is its ability to promote the safety and happiness of the people.

The Republicans in Cleveland pledge themselves to preserve the American system of free enterprise, private competition and equality of opportunity and to seek its constant betterment in the interest of all.

Comparisons. The other clashes. CONSTITUTION—Democrats say that drought dust storms floods minimum wages maximum hours child labor and working conditions in industry monopolistic and unfair business practices cannot be handled adequately in separate state legislatures and courts will seek to meet these problems inside the constitution and if they cannot they will take the amendment to enable the states to meet the problems.

Republicans pledge themselves to maintain the American system of constitutional and local self-government and to resist all attempts to impair the authority of the supreme court. Gov. Landon added his personal pledge he would be for a minimum wage constitutional amendment if necessary.

CURRY—Republicans for a sound currency. At all hazards they oppose further debasement of the dollar. They favor a balanced budget and a reduction of the authority to coin and regulate value of money. Gov. Landon added his personal feeling in behalf of a gold standard when practically all for international stabilization with regard for American interests.

Stand on Money Policy. Democrats stand on the Roosevelt dollar and mention neither silver nor gold.

MONOPOLY. Both platforms declare for right prosecution of and for additional legislation necessary. The Democrats say monopoly and concentration of economic power.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF. Republicans declare for reuniting the state responsibility to non-political local agencies familiar with local conditions and to pay their proportionate share of the cost of relief. They favor a separate consideration away from relief encouragement of self-support.

Democrats say first objective is maximum employment in industry at adequate wage. Include for public work at prevailing wage with state and local cooperation.

TARIFF AND FOREIGN TRADE. Democrats for lowering tariff barriers on American products by treaty protection against dumping and unfair competition by other nations.

Republicans condemn Roosevelt reciprocal treaties and express with which they were made selective for middle of road tariff with flexibility.

The platforms are surprisingly alike on regulation of business practices civil service national Jr.

PATROLMAN KILLED BUT SAVES FIANCE

Shot While Fighting Two Holdup Men After Pushing Girl Out of Way.

By The Associated Press
CINCINNATI, June 7.—City Patrolman Lawrence Robbins, 31, died at the hands of holdup men last night, but first pushed his fiancée from his parked automobile to safety and battled the thugs, who, killing him, fled in the car in which he had placed his service revolver.

Police through all sections of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky today were on the alert for the car. Heatless G. Brown, 23, with whom Robbins, off duty at the time, was seated, was on the verge of collapse as she detailed her experience.

Approaching the machine in Eden park, not far from the downtown section, the thugs first asked for a match. Miss Brown told police.

Then, the girl said, "they shoved guns at us and told us to 'klick 'em up or we'll fill you full of lead'."

Robbins attempted to reach for his service gun, to a dashboard compartment.

"Don't try that," they warned, according to Miss Brown, "come out of there and have your hands cuffed."

Robbins pushed her from the car, the young woman related, and showed the gunmen aside.

"There was a scuffle as 'Robbie' tackled them," she asserted. "All at once there was a shot and he slumped to the ground," a bullet through his side, caustic acid dripping.

The men then ran to the officer's car and sped away.

Huber Wins Two-Game Lead in Commercial Loop Race

DEFEATS PROSPECT WHILE SHOVEL NOSES OUT CAMPERS, 3-2

Fairfield Blanks Lawrence Markets; Merchants Tie Excavators, 3-3.

Marion Merchants 3, Excavators 2.

Excavators	0	6	.000

Behind the four-bit pitching of Walters, Huber's entry in the Commercial league pounced on 11 safe bingles to defeat Prospect, 10 to 3, last night and increase its lead to two full games over its nearest rival. The game marked mid-season of the loop race and was the seventh consecutive victory for the winners.

The Marion Steam Shovel team earned a tie for second place by defeating the Keytown Campers, 3 to 2. Fairfield's aggregation engineered a slugfest to blank the Lawrence Markets, 11 to 0, and the Marion Merchants and Excavator teams battled to a seven-inning deadlock, 3-3.

Two twilight games and an All Star night league contest are on schedule for tonight. The Children's Home and Lutheran teams will meet on President's field and Forest Lawn and Trinity Baptist will clash at Lincoln in Intermediate league twilight contests. A third junior loop game matching Lee Street and Wesley has been postponed. The feature attraction at Lincoln stadium under the flood lights will bring together the Axe Funeral and Elks teams.

There seemed little question of Huber's supremacy in the Commercial loop as it set the hard-slugging Prospect team down to the 10 to 3 defeat, by pouncing out 11 hits and playing errorless ball. Walters, the victorious handsman, issued five walks, fanned four batters and only three opposing Prospect hitters were able to touch his offerings. Griffith singled and doubled, Roberts tripled and Hansen singled to account for the only hits garnered by the down-county nine.

Anderson and Edgington appeared as the murderer's row in Huber's batting line-up. Both players collected four hits in five trips to the plate, Anderson getting a circuit clout and a triple, while Edgington

Beauty Seeks Third Olympic Berth

The Sportsman

BY LARRY BAUER

A good fisherman is a sportsman whose sportsmanship extends further than just to fishing, according to C. E. Sanborn, entomologist at Oklahoma A. and M. college, and state chairman of the Wildlife Conservation federation.

"Unfortunately many fishermen will not stop fishing after catching a reasonable mess, or reaching the creel limit," he says. "On account of this piggishness many fishermen have no luck at all, because their share has already been appropriated by someone who got a double portion."

Rules Have a Purpose
"It bespeaks a man credit to say he observes the rules to the letter. Both the fish and his fellow sportsmen get a better 'break' if observance is strictly followed. The sportsman appreciates the generosity of land owners who allow him to fish on their property, and he waits for a proper invitation before 'barging in'.

"For most of us, our welcome down on the stream on Mr. Jones' place is worn out. We have already gone there too many times without a personal invitation. Perhaps we have been guilty of tearing down fences and trespassing over young crops. Jones has always been hospitable, but since we have treated him rather badly, and since we do not have a return invitation, it behooves us to look around for new streams to conquer.

"A good fisherman is a sportsman, whose sportsmanship extends further than just to fish. He respects property rights."

Watch the Moon

Soon after the beginning of the new moon is a good time for fishing, Sanborn says. Worms and minnows are attractive bait for most fish that are caught by the still fishing method. Artificial bait, simulating small fish and crawfish, get results as a casting lure. Trout flies of almost any pattern on No. 8 or No. 10 hooks are good for casting in case pan fish such as broom and perch are sought. These small fish are usually in schools. When a school of properly sized fish is located a fly-caster of moderate ability should have no difficulty in obtaining enough for his dinner.

PAR TAKES BEATING IN SECOND ROUND OF PLAY AT INVERNESS

Picard and Revolta Team Upset by Mangrum of Dayton and Wood.

TOLEDO, O., June 25.—Historic Inverness was in for another beating today as 16 of the country's leading professionals went into the second round of the annual four-ball round robin team play tournament.

Thursday's opening round was replete with surprises, not the least of which was the setback handed Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and Johnny Revolta of Evanston, the P. G. A. champion, by Ray Mangrum of Dayton, O., runner-up in the recent Western Open, and Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., winner of the General Brock tourney in Canada this summer.

Since teaming up two years ago Picard and Revolta had soared through the Inverness and Miami, Fla., best ball tourneys without losing a match. They were two down to Mangrum and Wood, however. The eight best ball scores yesterday totaled 335, against par of 368, or 33 under regulation figures.

Walter Hagen and youthful Key Laffoon of Chicago were the only other pair to win in the opening round, the old master and Laffoon handing Denny Shulte of Boston and Vic Ghezal of Deal, N. J., runner-up a year ago, a two-hole setback. Hagen and the Chicago youngster ripped six strokes off par with a brilliant best-ball score of 85.

In the other matches the honors were even. Jimmy Hines and Willie Klein, both of Long Island, halved one match with Tommy Armour of Chicago and Bobby Cruikshank of Richmond, Va. The other was an even struggle between Horton Smith and "Light-horse" Harry Cooper, and Lawson Little and Jimmy Thomson.

RED BERRY TO WRESTLE GEORGE SAUER MONDAY

Wild Red Berry versus George Sauer and Sailor Moran versus Buck Weaver are the two feature bouts announced today for next Monday's wrestling program. The featured scraps, over the 20-minute period with two falls to win and a 30-minute preliminary will be held in the outdoor arena on Uncapher avenue if the weather permits.

Both Wild Red Berry, who hails from Pittsburg, Kan., and George Sauer of Lincoln, Neb., appeared on last week's program and gave a good account themselves in scrap with other opponents. Berry dropped a decision in a final decision which remained a bit cloudy in the minds of fans while Sauer succeeded in taking the measure of Lon Chaney of Indianapolis in two consecutive falls.

What style of scrapping the colorful Kansan will use against Sauer is a matter of conjecture among followers of the mat sport. With both contestants confining their activities to straight wrestling, the bout would no doubt prove to be very evenly matched. Sauer, who walks the ropes for protection and to arouse the ire of his opponent to find an opening, may get the better of Wild Red because of the latter's over-eagerness to mix blows.

The untamed Kansan reaches what is seemingly the height of his ambition when he is able to wage a brawl with a batty opponent. Being the "loper" in the wrestling world, according to his own opinion, Berry is capable of launching a futile attack which has resulted in his impressive string of victories here. His coming encounter with Sauer seems as a rival to his scrap last week with the Masked Terror for action and hard-fighting.

Buck Weaver, the great Hoosier, may find rough going against the hefty Sailor Moran of St. Louis. Weaver, who is widely known as the Terre Haute bad man, ap-

BOSTON, June 25.—Jack Sharkey, the man of a thousand moods, projected himself back into the heavyweight picture today as the result of a close but convincing ten-round victory over young Phil Brubaker, California's latest contribution to the boxing wars. ## CONKLE BATTING .500 FOR SHOVEL TEAM

Anderson Second With .480; Squad To Play Columbus Team Sunday.

Batting averages of members of the Marion Steam Shovel baseball team, including all of the seven games played this season, were announced today by Alex Shoup, manager of the club. Conkle, second worker and centerfielder of the Diggers squad, is batting an even .500 per cent, with Anderson, catcher, in second place with an average of .480. Other averages are Shoup .44, Marshall .43, Robinson .40, Hallinger .33, Waldauf .30, McAninch .31, Perry .23, Kunkle .22, Fetter .14, Darnell .00.

The M. S. S. team will meet the Craven Drug team of Columbus at Lincoln park, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The invading club has won three of its five games this season, and is the only Columbus squad which has succeeded in defeating the strong Chillicothe Red Cross three outfit. It scored a 9 to 4 win over the Chillicothe team on its home field several weeks ago. The tentative Craven line-up for the game here Sunday probably will include Scott, pitcher, O'Malley, catcher, Meuser 1b, Todd 2b, McCoy 3b, Cyphers 3b, and outfielders Brand, Cyser and Cashbaum, according to an announcement made by Manager Fred Meuser.

MINIMUM WAGE LAW LAST DITCH FIGHT

Attorneys Argue Against Claims of Two Women Pleading for Freedom.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., June 26.—Facing last-ditch battle to prevent enactment of Ohio's minimum wage law, assistants to the attorney-general presented to a three-judge federal court today arguments claiming that the statute interfered with the constitutional freedom of contract.

The judges, Florence Allen of Cincinnati, Robert Nevin of Dayton, and Mell Underwood of Columbus, must rule on the petitions of Marguerite Walker of Columbus and Kathryn Dinkin of Lebanon for restraining order to halt enforcement of the law.

The defendants, Industrial Relations Director O. B. Chapman and Elaine Sheffer, head of the state minimum wage division, are moved for a dismissal of the petitions, asserting that the court lacked jurisdiction to hear them. The three judges must also rule on that motion.

In a brief, Assistant Attorney-General Isadore Topper and J. K. Jones held that invalidation of the

NEW YORK MINIMUM WAGE LAW
The U. S. supreme court did not constitute a ruling on the Ohio law.

Although Ohio's law was patterned after New York's, the brief said, an interpretation of the eastern law by New York's court of appeals changed the New York law.

Ohio's law, it said, is based on the reasonable value of services rather than on the cost of living. The New York court of appeals ruled the law of their state was based on both factors.

Granting of the restraining order, state officials said, would immediately halt enforcement of the minimum wage law pending a possible appeal to the supreme court.

Facing It.

There is a possibility, almost a probability, that before the end of July newspapers will be full of drouth news and pictures, as they were in 1934. Already scattered reports from the middlewest are coalescing into apprehensive accounts of what may happen before the summer is over.

When floods destroy property and undermine human security there always is solace to be obtained by considering what might be done to prevent recurrence of the disaster. Without exception, remedial measures are taken. Something can be done.

With drouth, it is different. The weight of disaster cannot be lightened by dipping into the treasures of engineering skill and government. It must be borne in full. Its effects can be alleviated, but the cause remains. Americans, facing the imminent possibility of another drouth in the middle west, once more are made to realize there are some things even they are helpless to try to control.

Model Prisoner.

There was a peculiar pleasure in running across an old name in the day's list of crime news Wednesday. With so many upstart gangsters and hoodlums trying to make their way up in the underworld, it has been easy to forget about Al Capone.

The former Chicago big shot got into a little scrape with another prisoner out in Alcatraz. He resisted successfully an attempt to stab him in the back, hit his attacker and made his own way to the prison hospital for treatment.

Prison officials admit willingly that Capone has been a model prisoner. The fact seems worth mentioning. While it isn't to be expected that the gang chief is going to emerge from his long imprisonment completely reformed, it is interesting to know that the Alcatraz environment isn't being wasted.

At the beginning of the present decade Al Capone was a national disgrace—a symbol of insolent defiance of law and order. A good deal of frantic talking was being done; some charged that hoodlums were more powerful than policemen. Out of it all, something came. A part of the product, besides the graves of gangsters who yielded finally to some other fellow's bullets, is Al Capone of Alcatraz, a model prisoner.

A Trifle of Labels.

Rep. William Lemke, front man for whatever third party may emerge from current discussions, raises again the question of party labels.

Rep. Lemke has been renominated as a candidate for congress on the Republican ticket. He describes himself in the Congressional Directory as a Nonpartisan. He is the presidential candidate of the Union party, whatever it turns out to be.

So what is Rep. Lemke? What does North Dakota, his state, think he is? Obviously, he is not a Nonpartisan; there's no political party of that name. He is not a Republican if he is a Unionist. He cannot be a Unionist if he is a Republican.

What is Sen. Norris of Nebraska, who openly and vigorously supports the new deal version of Democracy? He is listed in the Congressional Directory as a Republican, though he will seek reelection in November as an Independent.

In England, a politician who leaves his party also leaves the protection of its name and banner. He goes before his constituents as soon as possible in his new character and asks for their approval. Possibly the same method would not work in the United States, but certainly no brief can be held for the present aliphad arrangement under which party labels, both Republican and Democratic, may be used to mock the organizations which lent them to the office seeker.

Not Unexpected.

If the latest edict of Harry L. Hopkins, WPA chief, works out the way it appears to be intended, a change toward decentralization of relief administration will be started.

Putting much of the responsibility for administering the new WPA program upon state administrators, Mr. Hopkins directs them to select their workers from the unemployed now on relief or from those removed in need of relief. While this order joggles the previous restriction that all employees had to be taken from those on relief rolls, it is understood that quotas fixing the numbers of workers and amounts to be spent in each state will place limits tations upon payrolls and prevent indiscriminate hiring. Within the limits of these quotas and those of some general regulatory provisions, state and local administrators will have authority to select workers, decide how many hours a month they must work and which of the projects approved but not begun will be carried out.

Such a change may not appear those demanding return to relief administration to the states but it is a welcome move away from the doctrine of centralization. Quite likely Mr. Hopkins and his aids are happy to rid themselves of a multitude of irritating details of administration by giving more authority to men on the spot. If the states themselves generally would show ability and willingness to take back the relief burden they so readily shifted to the federal government, a way out of the relief forest might be seen.

Sen. Robinson Speaks.

If any one Democrat deserves the party's and President Roosevelt's gratitude more than any other, he is Sen. Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas.

In 1933, Sen. Robinson was by no means a likely new dealer; he was too conservative. But he was a party man, and out of his loyalty he has acted as the Roosevelt administration's legislative leader in the senate. Without him, President Roosevelt's legislative program would have had more trouble in the senate than it did. Apparently, Sen. Robinson now is as ardent a new dealer as any.

Sen. Robinson's speech was the big event of the Democratic convention Wednesday night. As convention speeches go, it was a good job, though its dignity suffered by comparison with Sen. Barkley's fiery keynote speech of the preceding night.

Sen. Robinson's job, apparently, was to try to prove that Republicans, besides being blackguards as a group, also are scoundrels individually and unable even to construct a decent political platform. Though he probably gained few converts to that point of view, he gave his Democratic listeners an opportunity to cheer, and that is, after all, the highest purpose of any political convention.

Many more or less impartial citizens must be beginning to wonder what Democratic orators would have done this week had not the Republican convention given them a set of straw men to attack.

A Case for NYA.

Alone in his Washington office, Sen. Rush D. Holt, West Virginia Democrat, is thinking things over while his Democratic brothers and sisters make merry in Philadelphia.

One of the youngest persons ever to enter the senate, Rush Holt came to the upper chamber a year ago, full of enthusiasm for the new deal and eager to start on his political career. Quickly, though, he clashed with authority over administration of the WPA. Repeatedly he felt impelled to charge that politics, particularly in his home state, was vitiating relief administration. Frequently he called for a sweeping investigation of the WPA setup.

The records indicate Sen. Holt's revolt brought him nothing but trouble. Harry L. Hopkins, WPA chief, issued his customary denial of the charges and characterized the young senator as a rebel. What is more, the rebel insists, administration officials punished him by shutting off his patronage.

Rush Holt is thinking things over. He hasn't decided whether he will bolt the party but he is going to write a book. Probably entitled "One Year in the Senate," it will tell of "all the political intrigue of that great debilitative body and reveal the workings of the political dictators in the senate."

That the book will proceed along those general lines the senator admits. What possibly is not yet crystallized in his mind but what is likely to show through the book, is a story of disillusionment. Fired with a vision of the more abundant life, the young man entered upon his duties a year ago. Today, whether he knows it or not, he realizes the way to heaven leads through malodorous bog and swamp. Perhaps he is not even convinced that heaven lies beyond.

Service Charge.

The state auditor's report showing an increase of almost $20,000,000 in 1935 general fund expenditures, compared with 1934, will be seized upon as an answer to Gov. Duvey's economy claims.

Not all the increase, however, can be traced to things which the Davey administration did or did not do in 1935. More than $13,000,000, for instance, was spent on old age pensions.

Close to $2,000,000 was put into the Muskingum conservancy project. About half a million was paid to counties for poor relief. No one politician can be held responsible for the increase, convenient as personal blame is as a political weapon.

Ohio is discovering budget by budget and year by year that the state cannot respond to the constant popular demand for more services without reflecting the result in its spending and taxing. The same thing is being discovered in all other states and in the federal government most of all.

Eventually, the connection between heavy public expenditures and the conception of government as an agency for performing services in a constantly wider field will be realized. In the meantime, it will be easier to assume that the whole thing is the result of political squandering, which probably accounts at the most for a small fraction of public spending.

Convention Has Two Distinct Aspects

One Puts on Great Show of Confidence While Other Betrays No Small Amount of Apprehension.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—There are two distinct aspects to this convention—the external, which has put on a great show of confidence and enthusiasm, and the internal, which betrays no small amount of apprehension that the forthcoming presidential contest will not be the walk-away it appeared to be a few months ago.

In addition, there is a sentiment about this convention which cannot be understated. It is that the delegates are Democrats in fact as well as in name, and they have no more sympathy at heart with the Tugwells and the Wallaces and the likes and the so-called radicals than has Al Smith.

Sitting alongside a southern business man, a life-long Democrat, and a man who is considerably anti-new deal in his point of view, I was interested in a spontaneous comment that came from his lips: "Look at them, just like any other group of delegates I've ever seen—and as I look at them they don't seem to be at all the kind who would want to change our form of government."

And he was right. There isn't any radicalism in the rank and file of the delegation. Left to themselves, they would this year write a liberal conservative platform and nominate a man like Cordell Hull for president. But this is not to say they are disloyal to Roosevelt. Far from it. They recognize in him the best vote-getter the Democratic party has ever had. Most of them do not understand Roosevelt reforms, but they accept them on faith. If they thought the Roosevelt program really meant destroying the capitalist system or limiting freedom of opportunity or dictatorship they would be in arms.

But with the political fidelity, the delegates assume that much of the Roosevelt radicalism was necessary for the emergency period and that as recovery comes back much of it will be dropped, too.

I have been surprised to find a certain amount of criticism of Postmaster General Farley. One United States senator, for instance, who is a loyal Democrat, told me he doubted whether Mr. Farley had as good an organization for the campaign as he ought to have and that the Republicans might possibly have a much better one this year. He pointed out that the Republicans have the intensity and fire of a crusade—something they have rarely had in their campaigns.

In talking with other prominent delegates, I found a tendency to think ahead as to what the future of the Democratic party might be in 1940, or possibly in 1938, when some of the senators come up for reelection. The subtext of the words "Democratic party" and the over-emphasis on the words "new deal" goes against the grain of the old-timers, who know that, in the past at least, the name Democrat has been associated with it some great traditions and some remarkable vote-getting strength with the common people.

It would be a mistake to report that this convention has anything in it that could be called anti-new deal in the sense of those elements which have been fighting the President's program. But it is obvious that the conservative-minded persons in the convention are made of the same stuff and fiber and have somewhat the same reactions to restrictive legislation as do Republicans of like environment or disposition. It would be a simple matter to segregate here the liberals and the conservatives, but it would, on the other hand, be unfair to assume that a Democratic conservative has anything in common politically with his Republican brethren. The Democratic conservative likes to wear his liberalism on his sleeve and attack monopoly and trusts and about about the benefits of government aid to the common people.

To aim up, the vast majority of the delegates of this convention are "regulars" in the Democratic ranks. They do not expect Mr. Roosevelt's second term. If he is elected, to be as radical or so full of experiments as his first. They expect a settling down, a trend toward prosperity—they are wishing and hoping for some of the old days when, once a party got in power, it stayed there many, many years—not by stirring up too much opposition or class warfare but by intensive party organization, plenty of funds from the business interests for campaign purposes, and just enough liberalism to keep the masses from going into the Socialist party.

This may seem like an uninteresting convention to some because the contest element is missing, but it is nevertheless a reflection of the Democratic party of old, happy enough to go along with Roosevelt as long as he pulls in the votes but ready to abandon him if, by chance, next autumn his reforms have proved too extreme and if the voters register a big negative vote against the new deal.

Behind the News

Mallory in Philadelphia for Democratic Convention.

By PAUL MALLORY

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—President Roosevelt has adopted a personal platform plank of his own which may turn out to be more important than any adopted here.

A few days ago the White House casually announced that the President was appointing a three-man mission to go to Europe to study cooperative enterprises. The move was lost in the noise of the convention hallways.

The story behind it is this: Some weeks back Mr. Roosevelt read a book called "Sweden: The Middle Way," by Marquis Childs. He became interested in its account of the way capitalism has been controlled there by consumer co-operatives and state competition with private business.

Now he has picked a new deal leftwinger, Jacob Baker, assistant WPA administrator, to conduct the study. He expects a report back in time for use in the campaign.

Strong Arm
The purposes set forth in the book cannot be taken as indicating fully what Mr. Roosevelt has in mind. But they at least indicate lines along which he is thinking.

The book shows that a third of all retail trade in Sweden is now carried on by co-operatives without profit. About 10 per cent of wholesale trade and manufacturing for domestic consumption is conducted by co-operatives. The system has been built up over 40 years. In it, the royal family, a Socialist government and a capitalist system all work side by side.

Lumber and electrical power generation are the two largest state industries, which compete with private business. Limited state monopolies also have been created in liquor and tobacco. (Profits from the monopolies, above a limited dividend, go to the state.)

The author defines the system as "a course between the absolute socialization of Russia and the end of development of capitalism in America." He says: "The Swedes have not hesitated to curtail or abolish profit, or the private business man, when desired change made this necessary."

Interest
What interested the President primarily, his associates say, is that the system contained "marvelous possibilities as an anti-monopoly scheme," through state competition. It also contained the germ of experimentation which has always fascinated him.

His mission will visit all countries where co-operation has been tried; Denmark, where rural marketing operations have had unique development; Norway, where the cooperative fisheries furnish an example of collectivism; and England, where the cooperative movement started and flopped.

Some Presidential friends say he left this front paw of his co-operation cat out of the bag at this time only as a sop to the liberal extremists within his camp. Messrs. Tugwell, Tennes and Wallace have not faced very well among the official-holding delegates at Philadelphia. They had to have something. The fact seems to be the cooperative movement is a little too strong to be absorbed by delicate delegate constitutions, except as fed in tidbits of generalities.

Acting Postmaster General Farley is said to be sleeping with a handkerchief in his mouth as he will say nothing prematurely about what he intends to do with the postmaster generalship during the campaign. Nevertheless, his postal associates have heard that he recently issued an order which will permit First Assistant Bill Howes to sign himself as "acting postmaster general." Such a change would merely make Mr. Howes a rubber stamp temporarily for Mr. Farley for campaign purposes.

Plus
Much inside missionary work is supposed to have been performed upon wayward Senator Glass and Smith to get them back in sight of the delegates here.

The fact is many delegates have gone home, not because they were angry, but because the show has been rather dull and there is nothing much for them to do. Everybody gets very tired of conventions after the second day.

Places of the missing, however, have been largely taken up by people coming in for the Roosevelt acceptance speech Saturday night.

Smooth
Those who have talked with Mr. Roosevelt on the telephone since the convention started have remarked how gay and cheerful he has been. Apparently, he has been delighted by the convention trend, and the extent to which he has been able to guide it, smoothly.

Convention-Scope
A reporter who hears very well is willing to swear he heard Dr. Townsend say the third party movement was designed to hurt the Democrats, not the Republicans. Farley's wife pulled her gun to worry after the second day because they had stretched the convention out too long. The headquarters hotel dance orchestra has definite orders not to play "Oh Susanna" or "The Swallowtail of New York."

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Thoughts while strolling: Now that the two biggest liners are in commission, everybody wants to cross in a Zep. Robert Woolsey doesn't smoke a cigar he "rassels 'em." Herb Swope seems the modern Lucky Baldwin. He wins every wager.

How lonesome Bobby Clark will feel playing without Paul McCullough. Look alike: Jack Pearl and Dale Apollon. Mrs. Walter Chrysler seems designed for a shepherd's crook, long train and Gainsborough hat. Benny Leonard is almost in the heavy weight division.

For the Look the Same as They Did 15 Years Ago Club: Col. Joe Hartfield. Add middle hair parters: Billy Moore. Why not a reunion of all the Tanya-barbers, restaurateurs and bootblack? Bob Garland is now the No. 1 regular among the Algonquin luncheoners. The Normandie is getting the passenger breaks.

Never knew any one to know the why of the goat's head for the Book Bear sign. Even Lou Holtz doesn't carry a cane any more. The Communists would have a lot of fun with another Harry Lehr. A Little Lord Fauntleroy grown up—Woolworth Donohue. What became of Whitney Bourne?

Long time since any one has heard of One Eye Connelly. George S. Kaufman who hunted Hollywood so long spends much of his time nothing rather than a Sealyham frisking after a bath. Should be a law to make Harry Leon Wilson write more. How about a Quiet Shirt Week?

Lower Manhattan has an Evening Guild of Ferryboat Riders. They are mostly men of affairs in the financial district who remain at their offices late once or twice a week and ride back and forth a time or two to Staten Island walking the deck in contemplation or sitting astern to map out the next day's strife. Henry L. Doherty when he lived in Bridge Street was first to discover the isolation that a ferry ride gave. Others heard about it and after the evening rush he over many indulged the seclusion before being bowled home in waiting limousines.

Incidentally, the ferry musicians are no longer the seedy, forlorn tunesmen whose repertoire includes only "The Good Old Summer Time," "Swallowtail of New York" and old standards. The plight of the musicians economically has given the ferries trills of symphony orchestra calibre. Experts who can play the standard and classical arias with a flourish along, of course, with the reigning swing tunes of the day.

From a lady upon whom we have a mental bent to succeed in writing: "Not many young summers ago, I was born in Italy. In a small Italian town, I was the slope of a mountain whose nose stuck up into O, such deep blues. Somewhere from those old mother hills and from the adventuring ancestry sealed up behind me, I've an accumulation of pent up imagination and distressing insistent love for writing. This urge I've diverted into all the lanes of my little circle of possibilities. Hours I've spent pouring a noisy typewriter into pages of words, words, words; pages of short stories for family consumption; poetry for my own consumption; essays and endless writing of every description. Many days I've sifted all the words within my reach and yet was unable to put a single thought on paper. Yet I still love writing and nothing shall stop me, at least from trying."

The Word of God

Today—Ink and Paper

Not Make Freedom.

PARIS, June 26.—Karl R. says Russians will be the people in the world with a constitution. Writing in the slant newspaper, Pravda, R. says:

"The rights of Soviet will be assured by placing a disposal of workers and their organizations printing presses, piles of paper, public bank streets and means of communication."

"Nowhere under capitalism workers' rights be realized so fully. Even in those countries where it seems the considerable freedom of the proletarian enjoys this right only to the extent of his to purchase printing paper and the expenses of printing."

Paper and ink do not, as to much when somebody else slides what you may write print.

The American prefers to own paper, and write on it, he pleases. Also he would a system that would enable a man to buy his paper, instead getting it for nothing.

A learned professor wrote that they are going to become and less important and more important. Men had: big and strong, when they lions, wolves and each other, ditches and carried heavy. More and more, as they work push-button machinery, in a peace, their muscles will be small. Woman, producing race, will retain her size. B long, from one hundred to hundred thousand years B wives may be carrying their bands around in one corner of arm as they now carry marm or lap dogs.

In the lower animal kingdom, even after. You know when a certain species of ocean crab is caught, it is a female. Under one of the flippers you find the bus plenty as big as a 10-cent piece.

Ex-Kings Do Not Count. Hadie Selassie discovered water and emperors that gone over the dam do not. He went to England, expressed full confidence that the B would "do him justice," me that they would put him on his throne. He saw the Duke of Gloucester, King Edward's son, for half an hour. Just a "cial call," the duke thanking former emperor for his hosp at Addis Ababa when the dropped in there. No into with the British king and peror. In world politics En is practical.

Yes, Sir! Yes, Sir! England protested against the elevation of gun American warships because would make our guns shun far. In case of hit a British ship lined up.

Our statements, who will swer to this or to any old when it comes from England. "Yes, sir; yes, sir; yes, sir, our guns won't be elevated. can they be, if England do. But England made the protest to Japan. Let us see Japan will answer. This you write down, no matter who pen answers, she will increase her fighting. In Rome, as a matter of the earth's surface, one c pilled upon another. Dig through one, and the other pears. Invastions, plagues, is and the grinding ice have them out.

Those that read this loda the descendants of men su the inhabitants of the stor village. And still we are v looking down at the enemy erty, that may climb up at tack us in old age.

There is no wisdom con to nature's wisdom, no c complete nature's wisdom allows one young f live, she kills forty thousand her race discriminations at treds would seem more i than the hatreds and cruel the most viciously prejudic man being.

For instance, in one big can city, statistics show times as many Negroes as i in proportion to populatio from tuberculosis every year.

And Nature's cruelty an statistics cannot be r through legislation.

Not Greeley's Advice William H. Murray, called friend "Alfalfa Bill," a colonizer in Bolivia, lately error of Oklahoma, advises ican cotton farmers, "Go in fortune in the Argentine Ch Wonderful land, that Ch gion. Says he:

"The lands of the Chaco Bolivian and Argentine. are on the whole than our land, fine for cotton, corn, suga all kinds of vegetables."

"Cotton in the Bolivian C perennial. You find cotton growing wild in the forest. American farmer will find, will grow for years from one ing and will make a bette the second and third year the first."

Another adviser of Am whose specialty is finance what is going to happen to money and business, ad cautious American to put of his money in Canada, sure of safety in case of unfortunate should happen way of fascism or commun

Old Greeley did not advise Americans to go south to Argentina, or north to Canada. "Go west," the United S That is still good advi can succeed if you go east, north, south, anywhere o the Rio Grande and Ca border; success depends o you take with you, in your not on what you collect way.

INSECTS NOW RAVAGE DROUGHT RIDDEN AREA

Western Fields Invaded by Grasshoppers, Beetles, Cut Worms and Chinch Bugs.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, June 28.—A new menace—harmful insects in many farm belt states today.

Grasshoppers invaded fields in North Dakota, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Kansas.

Caterpillars, crickets, beetles, cutworms and chinch bugs were reported in various parts of the area.

Apprehensions of rain yesterday proved too light to be generally effective but federal forecasters saw the likelihood of local showers in eastern states and the possibility of precipitation in the northwestern area.

They also predicted lower temperatures for the northern tier of states after a siege of intense heat. Corn leaves curled in South Dakota yesterday as Stillwell recorded a maximum of 110 degrees. Huron 108, Aberdeen and Pierre 106, Watertown 102, Norfolk, Neb., had 105 and Grand Island, Neb., and Sioux City, Iowa, 105.

Preparations to evacuate livestock from arid sections of the northwest went forward.

R. W. Snow, former assistant secretary of agriculture, said the drought had ended all chances of the nation returning to an export basis for this year's grain crop. He predicted a spring wheat harvest of only 150,000,000 bushels with a winter wheat yield of 500,000,000 would just about meet domestic requirements.

ROOSEVELT'S NAME SETS SOUND RECORD

By The Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—The noise indicator at the Democratic national convention shot to a new high today during the demonstration after the name of President Roosevelt had been placed in nomination.

It climbed to 96 decibels—the unit for measuring the noise.

The previous record of 85 was established at Cleveland when the name of Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas was placed in nomination.

CARDINGTON BOY PRAISES LEGION

Writes Post From Buckeye Boys' State in Columbus.

Dale R. Lowther of Cardington, who is attending the Buckeye Boys' State, sponsored by the Ohio American Legion at the state fairgrounds in Columbus, gives an interesting account of camp activities in a letter to his sponsors, members of Alex D. Jenkins post at Cardington.

Dale, who is quartered on Broad street, east No. 8, City of Ingersoll, and county of Cate, was elected mayor of his city. In his letter he is enthusiastic in his praise of the legion for making it possible for the 450 boys to receive the fine training in citizenship provided by the program of the miniature state.

"We have radios, typewriters, mimeographs, magazines, reference books, note books and everything we need to carry on our work," he writes. "We even have typists employed in print our newspapers, circulars, etc." "The name of the state's cities and counties are derived from names of former legion commanders."

Marion Kiwanians Hear Dean of Kiski School

Marion Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon in Hotel Marion yesterday heard J. L. Marks, dean of Kiski School, at Salisbury, Pa., a college preparatory school attended last term by James C. Woods Jr. and William Isaly of Marion.

Dean Marks talked about football, a sport in which he is known throughout the country, and some of the characteristics in young men that made them successful in later life.

James C. Woods, In his introduction

of the speaker, said Dean Marks had given football training at Kiski to many players who later became all-American college stars and who, at one time, held the captaincy of six college football teams.

Likes Football

"I like football," Dean Marks said, "because it is a chunk of life. As in everyday life, the things you worry about in football are the cause of your troubles. It's unexpected thing that hits you when you're not looking for it."

Expressing the belief there are no "super-coaches," he said the coach's primary job is to select young men with enthusiasm and place them in positions where they can do the most good for the team. "You know, we can't give kids enthusiasm if they don't have it. They're useless both in school and out," he said.

"I've been asked many times whether the youth of today is better than young men of the past," he continued. "In many ways the young men of today are better—they're more amenable to discipline, for example. However, I believe they lack the ambition their fathers had."

"We spoil our boys—we mortgage our homes to give them comforts we didn't have, and then, too, we have many activities that take them out of the home and detract from their primary responsibility of raising their children."

Branching into a discussion of sportsmanship among young men, he asserted the best definition of that term he ever heard is, "The ability to put yourself in the other fellow's place." That ability, he declared, is important in every walk of life.

Puzzled by Question
Remarking that Kiski school is attended by young men from every part of the country, he said it was no surprise to him when a young student, slightly bewildered upon his arrival at the school, asked him how to make friends. Although strators, mostly young men, are shown as they unfurled Al Smith banners and shouted "We're for Al Smith." Police and loyal Democrats joined in the fist fights that followed, in which an innocent spectator was knocked unconscious and several others sustained injuries. Before the agitators were ousted from the hall by police.

We all laughed, and if mine was mctory, and that of the two tions decidedly nervous, the an was lifted, and we became more four normal human bepent upon luncheon instead of a quartet composed of two men who had been thinking of self-de- cision and a man and woman who had been racing against time to prevent tragedy.

Through With Classes. If you like good home cooking and a really unique setting, Ron- began hesitantly.

"Both listen mightly good to me," Dicky said briskly. "What about you, Madge?"

"I don't think we shall go wrong we let Ronald select the place," I said. "These Yale boys generally know where all the good things are to be found."

"Can you get off now, son?" Samuel Brixton asked.

"Yes, I have no more classes today," Ronald replied.

"Then can you drive me on up me afterward?" his stepfather queried. "I feel a lot better than I did when I started, but I'm a bit tvery yet."

"I wouldn't think of letting you drive a rod," Ronald said earnest- ly. "But tell me, first, I can't wait to know, has neither suspected anything about that?"

"I don't think so," Samuel Brixton replied. "I've been very careful and she doesn't know any- thing about business, you know. I've always kept everything from her."

"Yes, I know," Ronald said, and something in his tone told me that he shared my disapproval of the course followed by some husbands —the number diminishing, thank heaven, with modern conditions—in which a wife is sheltered like a hot-house flower from any blast of windy weather which her hus- band is fighting.

That the natural result of this course was the certain chilling of the hot-house blossom should cruel fate open the conservatory door and drive her forth into the wintry air on which her harder and bet- ter prepared sisters thrived never seemed to occur to the men whose great love—and vanity—refused to consider cold and cruel facts.

"I'm pretty sure she doesn't suspect a thing," Helena Brixton's husband went on, and Ronald gave a satisfied sigh of contentment.

"If you'll just wait till I get my hat," he said with a confused laugh. "We don't wear 'em much around here."

Wants To Talk. "You don't need to get it on my account, Ronald," I said, but he evi- dently felt that the occasion was one which must not be treated with sartorial levity.

"I really won't be over two min- utes," he said deferentially, "and if you don't mind, I'd rather—"

"Of course," I said hastily, and Dicky gave him a comradely slap on the shoulder.

"I'll even hold in my gnawing vials while you put on your R. O. T. C. uniform and give the gals something beside West Point to think of," he said, and as we all laughed, Ronald dashed through the gateway, to appear again with- in the two minutes he had named—I figured that he must have run every step as soon as he was out of our sight—with his modish hat firmly held in his hand.

"I think we'd better go in our car," Dicky commented. "It's an old thing, but it's roomy. But you'll have to direct me, Ronald, I don't know the old town any more."

There was in his voice the sub- conscious nostalgia which most col- lege men have for their alma mater, but Ronald's mind evidently was on something else. As he helped me into the car, he said in a voice no one else heard:

"Will you manage it so that I can see you alone for a minute or two before we leave?"

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Causes of Stroke.

It is difficult to convince the public how necessary it is for everybody to have periodic health examinations. "I do not feel sick, I am all right, I have no pain." These are common excuses for avoiding the doctor, yet when sud- den illness occurs the doctor is hastily summoned. It is the old story of the violent horse and the neglected barn door.

Almost every day I receive an inquiry about "apoplexy" or "stroke." This is not a disease in and of itself; it is an incident which occurs as a result of some chronic disorder. In most in- stances, the underlying trouble had been present for several years. If adequate measures had been taken to deal with the original ailment, the stroke would have been avoid- ed.

A stroke follows a neglect of some constitutional disorder. Bear in mind that most chronic disorders leading to apoplexy are ansealy, stealthy, quiet-working enemies of health. Their evil effects develop slowly and gradually, and on this account deceive the victim, or at least leave him ignorant of what is going on in his body. But re- peated visits to the doctor enable him to detect danger signals and to check them before damage occurs.

Apoplexy is rarely seen in young persons. As a rule, it is associated with such changes as high blood pressure, or heart and kidney disease, as well as other constitutional dis- turbances. It is frequently en- countered in those persons who fail to take the needed rest and relaxa- tion that their bodies require.

In apoplexy a blood vessel of the brain ruptures, permitting the escape of blood into the surrounding tissues. The blood causes pressure, perhaps on important parts of the brain, and usually results in un- consciousness.

A given stroke may be milder in its effects. But always the extent of damage is determined by the loca- tion and size of the ruptured ves- sel, the extent of the rupture and the amount of blood poured into the parts in severe hemorrhage.

Consciousness may never be re- gained, or at best permanent paralysis results.

Let me assure you that a mild stroke is not dangerous and fur- ther trouble need not be feared provided every measure is taken to prevent a recurrence. Included among the things that must be done are adequate rest, relaxation and the avoidance of emotional ex- citement and physical fatigue.

Neglect to follow these simple sug- gestions is sure to be dangerous.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed stamped envelope with their questions. Address all let- ters to Dr. Copeland in care of this newspaper.

Federal Writers Tell of Marion Co. Youth's Service As Civil War Spy

Jack Cade, a Marion county youth and a private in Company K, 4th Ohio Volunteer Infantry during the Civil War, was one of the most daring and most successful of the Union's secret agents. His record was brought to light by writers for the Federal Writers' Project preparing material for the forthcoming federal handbook on America.

Cade's captain noticed his excellent qualities soon after the young soldier had arrived with his regiment in West Virginia, and he was assigned to scout duty, an assignment that led to one of the most successful records of espionage in the entire Union army.

Col. Lorin Andrews and later Gen. McClellan relied upon him to get information concerning the movements of the enemy, and McClellan went so far as to issue orders that Cade was to be permitted to pass through the federal lines at will, day or night.

Edward for Capture
Cade's ability and his energy proved so devastating to the Confederate forces that in 1862 a Confederate force, Col. Ashby, placed a bounty of $500 on his head. It aroused young Cade's curiosity, the placing of a reward on his head, and he determined to see the man who thought him so valuable. He learned from a Union farmer in the vicinity of the rebel army that Col. Ashby was expected, and he hurriedly borrowed some clothes, a horse and buggy from the farmer. Dressed as a farm hand he emerged from the house and met the colonel on the road.

Unaware of Cade's identity, the colonel and the Union spy talked together and Cade learned that two cavalry companies of the enemy were approaching. He immediately gathered a party of Union farmers, arranged an ambush and killed 11 men of the rebel cavalry. He had not only seen his enemy, he had learned his secrets, too.

Joined by Home Boy
After his transfer to another division he was assigned to locate the enemy, and with him went another Marion county boy, Richard Field. They went to Massanutten mountain, found a favorable look-out post and with the use of field glasses, located the rebel camp and drew maps, which Cade placed in his hat with his handkerchief.

Enroute to their own camp they encountered rebel Mississippi soldiers who demanded their surrender. They were ordered to advance and, advancing, Jack removed his hat to get his handkerchief. At the same time he got the papers and when he returned the handkerchief to his hat, concealed the maps in his hand. Pretending to stub his toe he fell and, his body concealing his hand, he slipped the maps under loose leaves and dirt.

Cade's quick wits saved both young men from the firing squad, the penalty meted to all spies. As it was, they were imprisoned at Richmond for a short time and then paroled.

Marion Woman At WPA Sewing Center Formerly Was Entertainer On Stage

MISS buttonholes aren't sewing examples of the art, but her singing, as it "soon abouts", her dancing and her "gitar" are something to be dis- for the entertainment of WPA directors.

sewing center on North State street, in private life she's Mrs. Ebbie Burton of 690 Hocking street, widow of Wayne Burton, but to everyone who knows her she's "Ebbie".

Twenty-five weeks on tour in an act with Sophie Tucker, at $75 a week is Ebbie's claim. That was back in 1925 and, according to Ebbie, her principal job was "feeding" lines to the star and singing "Read Headed Mama." Ebbie recalls that on the tour they were in Los Angeles and Miss Tucker was invited to a party given by Hollywood stars. Miss Tucker insisted that the invitation was for "Miss Tucker and company," and gave Ebbie a cut velvet dress which she says she still has, let her wear three of her diamond rings, and Ebbie declares "if I hadn't looked in the glass I wouldn't have known I was colored, they all treated me so well."

For twenty-five years Ebbie was in vaudeville that took her into 40 states of the Union, she said the other day. She started entertaining when she was 5 years of age in her native town of Shreveport, La., and her incentive to go on with the show business came when she won first prize of $10 and a cake for her cake-walk. She says she's done everything in the show business from being booked with late comedian husband to the Klein agency in Chicago to traveling with carnivals.

It was a carnival show that landed Ebbie in Marion. The carnival management was six weeks behind with her pay when it showed on the Aaronholt lot five years ago and Ebbie says she figured she might as well leave the show here as any place else.

For a year she did pretty well with jobs entertaining in Marion and vicinity but came the lean years and odd jobs sewing house-work and finally the relief rolls. Eventually she was sent to the WPA sewing center.

She knew absolutely nothing about a sewing machine, she readily admits, but for about two months she persevered and finally made two shirts. Both she and Mrs. Jennie Crane, supervisor of the sewing center agree it was buttonholes that were Ebbie's Waterloo and finally led to giving her her present job of janitress five hours for five days a week and six hours on Saturdays.

There will be a meeting soon of district WPA officials here and Ebbie will play a "gitar" number and take the comedienne's role in a skit which the sewing center women will present.

MILDEW! SCORCH! STAINS! Removed BY MY MAGIC!

DON'T WORRY about mildew... scorch... stains... on white or color-fast cottons and linens. With Clorox on the job they disappear magically. Mildew is a fungus—washing has little effect on it. Clorox goes right to the source of the trouble—its germicidal action destroys the fungus—mildew vanishes. It removes scorch discoloration just as effectively.

Clorox banishes dinginess and ordinary stains from white cottons and linens in the regular laundering process. In a slightly stronger solution Clorox takes out stubborn stains—ink, fruit, flower, grass, beverage, medicine, blood.

Clorox disinfects, deodorizes and removes stains from refrigerators, drainboards, sinks, bathtubs, toilet bowls, tile, linoleum, sickroom utensils, garbage receptacles.

Clorox even provides a deodorizing, anti-septic bath for cats and dogs.

Like Clorox itself, the Clorox label is a revelation of safer and easier housekeeping. It also lists many important personal uses. Clorox is concentrated for economy. There is only one Clorox.

This Man Has An Investment in Your Community!

Every grocer has a large investment in the community which he serves. He has, of course, considerable capital tied up in his store and his stock. He has also invested time and effort to make that store a success. Besides that, he has made an investment in the future of the community. So, naturally, he has a deep interest in the neighborhood, and that means in you and his other customers. Naturally then, he strives to give you and them the best in quality, value and service.

When he selects bread for his customers he accepts only the highest grade—good, substantial home-like bread. Bread that is as good as any home-made loaf. Bread made with fine ingredients, baked by experts in a modern bakery. And that is why your grocer chose for you and his other customers—HOLSUM BREAD.

Jams and Jellies have twice the Flavor made this easy way!

SO hurry! Take advantage of your grocer's bargains... Buy strawberries right away and make up several batches of jam! With our easy recipe, you can make a batch in no time at all... in less than 15 minutes after your fruit is prepared!

The reason is that with Certo you boil such a short time... only 1/2 minute, for jellies; a little longer for jams.

WHY YOU GET BETTER FLAVOR That short boil is the reason, too, that you get better flavor. All the flavor stays right in the fruit, instead of boiling away in steam, as it does by the old-fashioned method! Jams and jellies made with Certo have all the rich lusciousness of the fresh, ripe fruit! No "boiled-down" taste.

You get so much more from your fruit, too, when you use Certo. Half again more glasses than you would get by the old, long-boil way. That's because no juice is lost, by wasteful long-boiling.

This wonderful Certo, that makes jam and jelly making so easy, is a product of General Foods.

VAN LINGLE'S FEAT EQUALS STRIKEOUT RECORD; TRIBE LOSES

Phillies Run Dizzy Dean Off Mound in Four Innings; Tigers Win

By The Associated Press
Anything can happen in this game of baseball and particularly where the brawling Brooklyn beauties of Casey Stengel are concerned.

If you don't believe it, go see this act up. A pitcher equalling a major league strikeout record by fanning seven in a row, a hitting total of 11 men in the course of the same battle, allowing only seven hits and then losing the ball game.

That happened to the luckless Van Lingle Mungo yesterday as he dropped a 5-4 decision to the Cincinnati Reds in the opener of a twin bill just to make the afternoon complete. The Reds also annexed the nightcap 5-1, sinking the Brooklyn dealer in a rout.

The result of the wasted Mungo was only a small part of the dizzy delirium in the daffy National league race yesterday. For instance, the lively Phillies shelved Dizzy Dean off the mound in four innings, winning the opener of their twin bill 13-4, only to have the Cardinals take the nightcap by the same count. The Chicago Cubs took the first game of their doubleheader with the Reds 1-0, although allowed only three hits, and pulled up to a bare half game from the league leader, Cards, by capturing the nightcap as well. 5-4 and the New York Giants who were supposed to be all washed up just a week ago climbed into third place over the Pittsburgh Pirates with a 5-4 triumph.

The layman was true in the American league where form told the story. The New York Yankees nosed out the White Sox 7-6 on the strength of their home hammering. The Senators clubbed the St. Louis Browns 12-5 as expected. Boston Red Sox paced by Jimmy Fox's 20th and 21st homers slugged the Indians 9-4, and the Detroit Tigers demolished the Athletics 13-1 with Schoolboy Rowe finally getting back into form with a two-hit performance.

Cluhan Allen field club outfelder was put on the sidelines for a week or more when he was spiked on the hand midway of the opening game of the Boston doubleheader.

With league competition just one game past the mid-season mark, teams entered in the Sunday doublet loop are concentrating their efforts on the final pennant drive. The Keytown Campers, unbeaten in eight games, held first place in the standings with the Stratford Grills trailing closely with six victories and one defeat.

Games Sunday will match the Troger and Lawrence Farm Market teams on a Marion diamond. Prospect and Keytown Camp on the latter field and Stratford Grills with Highland on the Union county diamond. Complete standings of the league follow:

Team	W	L	Pct
Keytown Campers	8	0	1.000
Stratford Grills	6	1	.857
Prospect	6	1	.857
Lawrence Farm	5	2	.714
Highland	6	2	.750
Union County	5	2	.714

Sectional Stars in Spotlight

Sectional OLYMPIC TRIALS
Jesse OWENS

With the national champion Whipple and the final Olympic trials just ahead, the nation's track and field stars are turning, on the heat with Berlin is their goal.

The sectional tryouts now getting under way all eliminate many ambitious athletes as only three competitors in each event qualify for the final trials. This weeding out process which takes in the N. C. A. A. games and the national title meet should put the competitors on edge for the finals and it is to be hoped that such a strenuous program doesn't result in the ultimate survivors being burned out before they reach Berlin.

An interesting angle to the sectional trials is the predominance of certain types of athletes in the different sectors.

For example the Pacific coast absolutely dominates the pole vault, the mid-west is sure to be tops in the sprint and the south excels in the hurdles.

The plethora of coast pole vaulters is astonishing. Eight of the nine men who reached the 14 foot mark this year prior to the trials were coast competitors. Any one of these stars—Wendover, Section Round Day Varoff, Graber, Deacon, Warner, and May—take top honors in the finals.

Of course it is a long pipe guess that these mercury footed mid-western mavericks Jesse Owens and Ralph Metcalfe will capture principal dash honors.
